Robertet Organics

Many food companies want to enter the organic certified products market. It presents a large opportunity as more and more customers reach for organic foods. No longer a fad, organic food sales have taken root in the mainstream and are predicted to continue to take market share.

Robertet has responded. We have created our first line of organic extracts and oils applicable for product developers. Now those working on foods destined to be certified organic have more options than ever.

Robertet Organics start with botanicals that are certified organic. The essences are then extracted using carbon dioxide, leaving flavor that is pure and free of solvent. Robertet's facility is certified to produce organic extracts, flavors and oils, giving us the opportunity to provide off-the-shelf popular standards, or custom tailor a product to meet individual needs. Throughout the process each input undergoes rigorous review for organic compliance, as does the final product by a program that includes raw material analysis, process review, factory audits and verification of documentation.

In addition, Robertet's products are covered by kosher, hahal and SQF certification.

Robertet offers a wide range of spice based certified organic extracts. These standard products are readily available, and custom formulations can be developed upon request.
